1. On 15 October 1955, the number of steam locomotives under repair in Hungary was between eighty and ninety. Work was suspended on these repairs owing to lack of plates or steam cylinders.
2. Of the seven BOCO electric locomotives belonging to the State Railways, four are now in running order, and three are under repair.
3. Apart from the above, however, the material position has improved. For example, the supply of brake blocks is greatly improved, about 900 tons per month being delivered. It is no longer necessary to remove blocks from rolling stock under repair, in order to keep other rolling stock in operating condition. The railways are also receiving enough iron to replace the worn-out wooden frames from the upper part of the freight car with iron frames.
